

ABA: 68795464

ventral S

The image shows a coronal cross-section of a brain. A blue-colored region is highlighted in the left hemisphere, primarily within the white matter. The brain is divided into four quadrants by a vertical and a horizontal white line. The blue area is located in the upper-left quadrant, extending from the lateral edge towards the midline and from the top edge down to the horizontal line. The rest of the brain slice is black.